Mayors reveal transit vision

$7.5B. 10-year plan counting on funding sources such as road pricing, tolls, carbon tax re-allocation

EMILY JACKSON

Metro Vancouver mayors approved a 10-year, $7.5-billion transportation plan Thursday. JENNIFER GAUTHIER/FOR METRO

Metro Vancouver mayors have unleashed their $7.5-billion dream for transit across the region.

On the menu: two light-rail transit lines in Surrey, a Broadway subway to Arbutus in Vancouver, a brand-new Pattullo Bridge and a major boost in B-line, night bus and SeaBus services.

To foot the hefty bill, the mayors propose a mix of road pricing, re-allocation of the carbon tax, tolls on the Pattullo Bridge, increased fare revenue and $3.6 billion in capital cost sharing from the federal and provincial governments.

The 10-year plan, created at the behest of the province in just 12 weeks, was approved almost unanimously at a mayors' council meeting Thursday. Burnaby Mayor Derek Corrigan was the only one to vote against it, saying the "mega" rail projects in the two major cities cost too much to be palatable to taxpayers and the province.

The plan is "not perfect," District of North Vancouver Mayor Richard Walton said, but it represents a compromise between the 23 communities that are expecting an influx of one million people over the next 30 years.

"Doing nothing to prepare for this growth is simply not an option," Walton said, adding there will be serious economic, environmental and quality-of-life consequences if a referendum on new funding sources for transit expansion fails.

If no new investment is made in transit, the region can expect more than 500,000 additional cars clogging up the roads in the next 30 years, according to the mayors.

Both Surrey Mayor Dianne Watts and Vancouver Mayor Gregor Robertson supported the plan, despite having to compromise on projects they've lobbied for. Watts will get two instead of three LRT lines — one on King George Boulevard and 104th Avenue, the other along the Fraser Highway — and Robertson's underground subway will not extend all the way to UBC. The projects will cost $2.1 billion and $1.9 billion respectively.

Of course, the mayors have to convince the province, and ultimately the citizens in a referendum, that this plan is worth paying for.

Hours after the plan was released, Transportation Minister Todd Stone quashed any hope of re-allocating the carbon tax. The province is open to a new, regional carbon tax to be voted on in a referendum, but Stone said at a news conference there is "no chance whatsoever" that the province would re-allocate the existing carbon tax.

Stone said it's up to the mayors to decide the referendum question and date.

No timeline for park

False Creek condos a go

Developer Concord Pacific got the green light to build two new condo towers in False Creek, but there's still no clear timeline for when it will finally build the park promised to frustrated residents years ago.

City council voted late Wednesday to approve 620 residential units in two towers between BC Place and the Cambie Bridge, a project that comes with a $4.2-million community amenity contribution to build a new dragon-boat facility at the Creekside Community Centre.

Concord also transferred a property in the Downtown Eastside to the city for it to build affordable housing in the future.

The False Creek Residents Association was upset council didn't do more to demand the nine-acre park along the north side of the seawall. But that project is tied up in complicated legal agreements between Concord and the province. With this rezoning, Concord will start moving forward with the final piece of land that will trigger the delivery of the park.

But Concord is waiting to see whether the viaducts will be torn down before it makes a move, a decision that will be made in summer 2015.

"We know we have the opportunity to have dramatic improvement in that area, including a much larger park," Coun. Geoff Meggs said Thursday.

"I'm as anxious as they are to see the park completed," he said of the residents who are protesting the delay by placing green lights in their windows.

Weekend at the bargaining table

Walkout. Province, BCTF aim to reach settlement before strike begins

SAM SMITH
vancouver@metronews.ca

With a full-scale teachers' strike looming around the corner, the BC Teachers' Federation (BCTF) and the provincial government are still no closer to reaching a negotiated settlement.

Education Minister Peter Fassbender assured parents on Thursday that students in Grades 10, 11 and 12 will be able to write their exams, and students particularly in Grade 12 will have their final grades marked in a timely manner.

However, he noted this was just a Band-Aid over the bigger problem — the strike.

"I am still profoundly disappointed that we have found ourselves in the potential for a full walkout and the announcement today about the study session on Monday, which I think potentially can mean that (for) some schools today is the last day of school," he said.

The province is ready any time between now and Monday to reach a settlement, Fassbender added, and he's optimistic they can reach an agreement.

"We are going to be at the table for as long as it takes this weekend," he said.

On Tuesday the BCTF said 86 per cent of teachers voted to escalate to a full-scale strike by Tuesday, June 17.

BCTF president Jim Iker said the vote shows how committed teachers are to reaching a "fair deal."

"After 12 years of deep cuts, 3,500 teaching positions lost and 200 schools closed, we are urging this government to reinvest in public education," he said. "Teachers are doing their utmost in an underfunded and under-resourced system.... Our kids deserve so much more."

Iker noted a settlement could be reached before the weekend was over but the province needs to come back with new funding, an open mind and the flexibility to reach a fair deal.

Job action

Stage 2 job action will also be extended to Monday, June 16, with all teachers taking part in a study session provincewide, meaning schools will essentially be closed.

We Create Change Tour hits Vancouver

Free The Children initiative. Spencer West, an amputee, talked to local students about overcoming challenges

vancouver@metronews.ca

He may have no legs, but that didn't stop Spencer West from climbing Mt. Kilimanjaro and it didn't stop him from doing a cross-country tour that made its way to Vancouver on Thursday.

Joined by more than 350 students from schools across the city, West spoke at Our Lady of Sorrows School about overcoming challenges and redefining what is possible in life.

"At age five I lost my legs and I was told I would never be a functioning member of society," West said. "Well, I'm here to prove those people wrong."

West leads the We Create Change Tour, an initiative of Free The Children that aims to bring education to people around the world.

In 19 years the organization has helped build 650 schools in 16 countries.

Also along for the tour was 11-year-old Hannah Alper, a self-described changemaker and activist.

"We are the change; we lead the change," she told the audience at Our Lady of Sorrows.

Alper noted Our Lady of Sorrows' local accomplishments, such as bringing in more than 1,600 items for the food bank and raising $600 for a local soup kitchen.

It's these initiatives that lead to a better community and a better world, she added.

This was the 89th stop of the tour, the second-last one, with West and the gang finishing off in Toronto on June 16.

Langley. Mounties seek suspect in alleged sex assault of teen girl

A composite sketch of the suspect.
CONTRIBUTED

Mounties in Langley are asking the public's help to identify a suspect in an alleged sex assault involving a 17-year-old girl.

The assault took place May 16 when the female high school student took advantage of an extended break at school to go to the docks at Glover and Billy Brown roads, according to Langley RCMP.

At about 12:15 p.m., she sat on one of the small piers to read a book when a male passed her on a bicycle a short while later, police said.

He returned 10 minutes later, said his name is Lucas and asked if he could join her, police said. When she didn't reply, he sat down with her.

After talking for a short while, police said he reached out without warning and touched her breast. The girl got up to leave and the suspect left westbound on a trail on his bike, police said.

The suspect is described as white, about 19 years old, between five-feet-five-inches and five-feet-six-inches with a medium build, wearing a brown T-shirt. He has curly brown hair, facial stubble, and could have a scar on his head.

Anyone with information about the suspect is asked to call Langley RCMP at 604-532-3200.

No suspects. Police investigate two suspicious fires in one night

Vancouver police are investigating two suspicious overnight fires that appear to have been deliberately set.

The first fire started around 1 a.m. Thursday when police responded to calls of a vehicle on fire on Wellington Avenue at Aberdeen Street, said Vancouver police spokesman Sgt. Randy Fincham.

When officers arrived, they found an SUV fully engulfed in flames. Firefighters put out the blaze, which also damaged another vehicle parked in front of the SUV.

About 30 minutes later, a second fire started at an information booth and washroom on Stanley Park Drive near Avison Way.

Police and fire crews arrived and the flames were extinguished before they could cause more damage.

Arson investigators believe both fires are suspicious.

No suspects have been identified and no arrests have been made.

Arson investigators are also investigating a third suspicious fire that happened June 7 at an apartment building on East Broadway near Fraser Street.

Firefighters responded to the fire, which started on the roof of the building, around midnight. Police believe the fire could have been intentionally set.

Narcissistic braggers 'ideal' in job interviews

Nobody likes a narcissist — except job interviewers, it seems.

That's the finding of a University of B.C. study that found narcissistic applicants are more successful in job interviews than modest candidates who are equally qualified.

"The narcissistic personalities, long known to be incorrigible braggers, are really in their ideal situation in job interviews because they spend all day bragging about themselves," said lead author Del Paulhus, a UBC psychology professor.

The findings suggest job seekers from cultural backgrounds that value humility, like Japanese, Chinese and Korean people, may struggle to land employment in North America.

After using questionnaires to measure participants' narcissism, researchers put them through interview simulations that were videotaped and later scored by raters.

All out just once

"A narcissist for a day is a good strategy."

Del Paulhus, UBC prof, analyzing the findings of his study and giving advice to the naturally modest struggling to find a job.

Narcissists tended to talk about themselves, make eye contact, joke around and ask the interviewers more questions. Participants of Japanese, Chinese and Korean heritage tended to be more modest and were less likely to be rated as must-hire candidates.

But it's not all good news for those with inflated egos.

Paulhus said previous research found that after several job interviews, people eventually caught on to narcissists, finding them the "most despised of any people."

Interviewers should also consider looking beyond an applicant's interview performance "if they want the best person for the job," he said.

When Arkells play Burnaby's Deer Lake Park on Saturday, there's a good chance they'll be stopping by Stanley Park first.

Frontman Max Kerman said the band always tries to visit the popular Vancouver attraction when they're in town, so much so that even a post-wedding hangover couldn't keep them from playing the park's 125th birthday celebration.

"I was a best man at a wedding the night before in Orangeville, Ont.," guitarist and vocalist Kerman told Metro. "So we literally partied until 4 in the morning, up for a 7 a.m. flight, and then played the show at 6 p.m. the next day."

"But the show went amazing and it was really cool to be a part of that," he said.

With a new record, High Noon, about to drop Aug. 5, the Hamilton, Ont., rockers are looking forward to kicking off their busy summer touring schedule, starting with Saturday's CBCMusic.ca Festival at Deer Lake Park.

Hosted by CBC radio personality Jian Ghomeshi, Arkells will share the stage with indie favourites Tegan and Sara, Spoon, Dan Mangan and others.

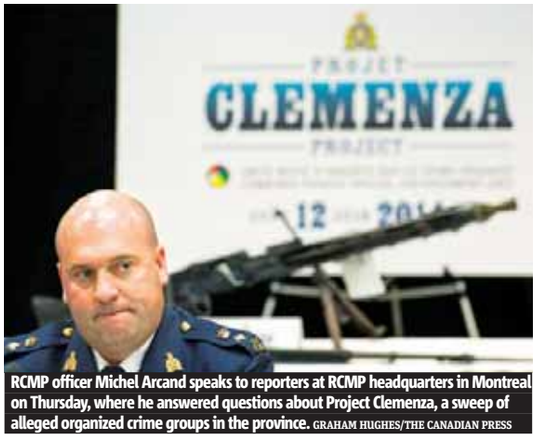
BlackBerry intercepts used in mob crackdown

Project Clemenza. Police say more than a million messages were analyzed as evidence, leading to arrest of 31 suspected gangsters



RCMP officer Michel Arcand speaks to reporters at RCMP headquarters in Montreal on Thursday, where he answered questions about Project Clemenza, a sweep of alleged organized crime groups in the province. GRAHAM HUGHES/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Police in Quebec say they used intercepted BlackBerry communications to take down two organized crime groups operating in the province.

The RCMP said Thursday more than one million private messages were intercepted and analyzed as evidence as part of an operation dubbed Project Clemenza.

Officials from the RCMP and Montreal police said it is the first time this investigative technique has been used on such a large scale in a criminal investigation.

"This is the most important interception of this kind performed as part of a major investigation in North America," RCMP Supt. Michel Arcand told a news conference.

"One million messages were intercepted between 2010 and 2012, (and) the investigation also included a complex analysis process."

The arrests are aimed at dismantling two cells which police say took over after Operation Colisee seven years ago, an operation aimed at their predecessors.

Police described the cells as linked to Italian-based organized crime in Montreal.

Police said they arrested 31 people in Montreal, Quebec City, Laval and Gatineau.

Islamic militants vow to march to Baghdad

Islamic militants who have seized cities and towns vowed Thursday to march on Baghdad to settle old scores, joined by Saddam Hussein-era loyalists and other disaffected Sunnis capitalizing on the government's political paralysis in the biggest threat to Iraq's stability since the U.S. withdrawal.

The militants also declared they would impose Shariah law in Mosul and other areas they captured.

Three planeloads of Americans were being evacuated from a major Iraqi airbase north of Baghdad, U.S. officials said. Germany urged its citizens to immediately leave parts of Iraq, including Baghdad.

The UN Security Council met on the crisis, underscoring the growing international alarm over the advances by fighters from the group known as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRAZIL READY TO SAMBA

The wait is over. Brazil kicked off the 2014 FIFA World Cup with a football-style Carnival before thousands of dancing yellow-clad fans, who seemed eager to put construction delays and protests behind them. To get you in the game, Metro has you covered with the latest from Brazil.

J-Lo helps World Cup kick off in style

Will soccer outshine the protests?

The sun rose Thursday on a tropical nation hosting its first World Cup in 64 years. Nearly half the world's population, well over three billion spectators, are expected to watch soccer's premier event and get a glimpse of the country that in two years will host the Summer Olympics.

But just hours before play was to begin, it still wasn't clear which Brazil we would see. Would it be the irreverent nation known for its festive, freewheeling spirit? Or would it be the country that, for the past year, has been a hotbed of fury over poor public services, discontent over a political system widely viewed as corrupt, and deep anger over the $11.5 billion US spent on hosting the World Cup?

"The world is going to see multitudes cheering for soccer — but also demanding that our country change," Helen Santos, a school teacher, said as she walked home in Rio de Janeiro. "The world needs to see that we're a serious country. We're not just a nation of soccer, but a country striving and demanding the government provide better education and health care. The world needs to see the reality of Brazil, not just the sport."

Street protests have lessened in size since last year, when Brazilians staged raucous rallies against the government, overshadowing the Confederations Cup soccer tournament. For two weeks, dozens of places were roiled by unrest. Whether Brazilians have moved past such disruption is uncertain.

"I hope the soccer outshines the protests, but I also know there remains a climate of anger," said Edson Carvalho, an office assistant watching 10 barefoot young men play a pick-up soccer match in Rio's Botafogo neighbourhood. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

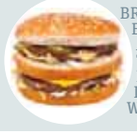
Brazil takes cup for sticker shock

What things cost in Brazil

Brazil protects its local industries by charging high tariffs on imported goods.

THE iPHONE 5s COSTS $649 IN THE U.S. BUT HAS A STARTING PRICE OF $1,250 US IN BRAZIL.

A PEPPERONI PIZZA WILL COST YOU $35 IN BRAZIL.



BRAZIL'S $6.28 BIG MAC IS AMONG THE MOST EXPENSIVE IN THE WORLD.

World Cup visitors, welcome to Brazil, land of soccer, sun and sky-high prices.

Unlike nearby Latin American nations where a tourist's U.S. dollar or European Union euro seemingly stretches forever, Brazil is astoundingly expensive.

If one's budget isn't immediately busted by the flight or the hotel, it will soon be done in by the $10 US caipirinha cocktail and the $17 cheeseburger. And those are the prices city-dwelling Brazilians saw even before the World Cup set off a new standard of sticker shock.

The dizzying prices are referred to here as the "Custo Brasil," or "Brazil Cost" — the mixture of high taxes and steep import tariffs, combined with bad infrastructure, a dose of inefficiency and a thick shot of bureaucracy.

Quoted

"Prices in Rio are absurd. I still like it ... but it's not paradise."

Maria Anda, a Norwegian artist who has lived in Brazil for a year.

Demand leading up to a big event like the World Cup naturally raises prices. But, since costs already were high to begin with, tourists should prepare to dig deeply into their wallets and not be too miffed to receive goods or services of inferior quality, said Rafael Alcadipani, a business administration professor at the Getulio Vargas Foundation, Brazil's top think-tank.

"Anything you buy in Brazil will be more expensive than in the United States or Europe, but the quality is going to be worse," he said.

Hotel rates in many of the World Cup host cities more than doubled ahead of the tournament. Massachusetts-based TripAdvisor reports visitors to Rio will face the highest prices, with hotel rates averaging $445 per night. Even the more affordable host cities will set travellers back a good amount: $457 per day in Cuiaba and $477 in Sao Paulo.

"The Cup prices are ridiculous. Everything shot up. The only thing you can buy in Brazil is a bikini, a cachaca (Brazilian sugar cane liquor) and a pair of Havaianas (sandals)," said Gillian Santos, a Brazilian who now lives in Belgium. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

World Cup revelry matched by rage

Turmoil in host cities.
Black Bloc adherents infect crowd angered by billions spent on sport

Protesters and Brazilian police clashed in São Paulo, Rio de Janeiro and at least three other World Cup cities on Thursday, around the first match of soccer's premier event.

Just after the match started, about 300 protesters marched along Rio's Copacabana beach to denounce lavish spending on a sports tournament in a nation with profound social needs.

The protest was peaceful, but there were worries that could change as adherents to the anarchist "Black Bloc" tactic were seen in the crowd.

Violence did break out elsewhere.

In Sao Paulo, more than 300 demonstrators gathered along a main highway leading to the stadium. Some tried to block traffic, but police repeatedly pushed them back using tear gas and stun grenades.

A few protesters suffered injuries after being hit by rubber bullets, while others choked on tear gas. An Associated Press photographer was injured in the leg after a stun grenade exploded near him. CNN reported on its website that two of its journalists were also injured.

"We're in a country where the money doesn't go to the community, and meanwhile we see all these millions spent on stadiums," said student Tameres Mota, a protester at the Sao Paulo demonstration.

Meanwhile, about 300 protesters gathered in central Rio de Janeiro; police took a few into custody. In Belo Horizonte, about 200 clashed with police, some smashing doors and windows. About 1,000 gathered in Porto Alegre, with some breaking property and hurling stones, authorities said. Police scattered about 150 protesters in the capital city of Brasilia, according to a local newspaper. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's Pom Wonderful news for juice maker

Sweet justice? Top U.S. court rules Pom can go forward with a lawsuit alleging a competitor's label is misleading

Coca Cola's version of pomegranate juice is not quite the real thing, and a competitor has another chance to prove it in court.

The U.S. Supreme Court on Thursday sided with juice maker Pom Wonderful in its long-running false-advertising dispute with the Coca-Cola Co., a decision that could open the door to more litigation against food makers for deceptive labelling.

The justices ruled 8-0 that Pom can go forward with a lawsuit alleging the label on a "Pomegranate Blueberry" beverage offered by Coke's Minute Maid unit is misleading because 99 per cent of the drink is apple and grape juice.

Lower courts had ruled in favour of Coke because the label conforms to the law and to Food and Drug Administration rules. But the Supreme Court reversed, finding that the juice label may technically comply with FDA rules but may still mislead consumers for different reasons.

Writing for the court, Justice Anthony Kennedy said federal FDA laws and trademark laws complement each other in the regulation of misleading labels.

THE METRO LIST

1 World Cup. You say football; I say soccer. Whatever, it's the biggest sports tournament on Earth, and it finally got underway in Brazil, despite a melee of protests, strikes and various other failures to launch. The Canadian team is chronically unable to qualify for the tournament, so we have to hope for somebody else. This year's favourites are Brazil, Argentina, Germany and Spain, but why not root for Africa's Cameroon, which punches way above its weight, unlike Canada?

2 Dead heat. Another tourney that wasn't resolved before my column-writing deadline was Thursday's Ontario election. Voters seemed underwhelmed by the choices: the Liberals and Kathleen Wynne, the Conservatives and Tim Hudak, and the NDP and Andrea Horwath. Before results were in, pollsters were calling it too close to call. Of course, after blowing both the B.C. and Alberta calls, pollsters have a recent history of being wrong, so maybe they were just hedging their bets. Horwath is the Cameroon of Ontario politics, and her chances seemed about as good.

3 Right, right, you're bloody well right. Speaking of politics, this is what it has come down to in the U.S.: An extreme right-wing Republican, Eric Cantor, who is also the Majority Leader of the House of Representatives, lost the primary, which is basically the nomination, to an even more extreme right wing Tea Party Republican, the appropriately named David Brat, who accused his seven-term rival of not being extreme enough. It worked, at least among the anvil chorus voting for Republican primaries in Virginia. "It's a miracle from God!" crowed Brat, revealing that God is registered to vote in Virginia.

4 Another day, another rampage. Hardly a day goes by without another shooting rampage, the latest a protracted gun battle on the usually bucolic seawall along Vancouver's trendy False Creek. Crazed gunmen and mass shootings have become such a common occurrence, we're almost numb. But it took a photo of Danny, the K9 companion of RCMP officer Dave Ross, to bring the tragedy of gun violence home. The photo, of Danny the German shepherd sniffing his master's hat and looking around for him at the funeral, went viral this week, and will continue to haunt us in the days to come.

5 There's always Justin Bieber. It's not quite comic relief, but it will do. Notorious Canadian twit Justin Bieber continues to make the wrong kind of news, this time for getting caught on video using the N word, not once but twice. It doesn't really matter that both incidents happened when he was 14 and 15. His goose is now pretty much cooked and he's barely out of his teens . Fresh out of PR spin, he's turned to God, and was recently baptized in a New York pastor's bathtub. Well, whatever works, but I suspect God is too busy helping the Tea Party Brat to take care of ours.

Pothole vigilantism goes artsy

The perfect pothole might not exist for many people — but for artist Jim Bachor, it's one with a nice oval shape.

Bachor began filling potholes a little more than a year ago, after one in front of his house became a hassle. He doesn't just fill them with cement, though. He's turned pothole-filling into a public art project. He fills them with mosaics. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public art, practical outcome

While his art isn't a permanent solution to the problem, it's at least a small fix, he says. The city hasn't shut down his project, and some community members have expressed gratitude.

Gerry Shaheen says Bachor and his crew are welcome anytime to fill potholes in his city. "I'll pave the way for them," Shaheen said with smirk. "No pun intended." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Designs

- Bachor uses the Chicago city flag design in his pothole art.
- Some versions hold phone numbers to local auto repair shops, while others simply read POTHOLE.
- His most recent installment — #21914 — pokes fun at the huge number of potholes that exist in the city.

Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum are producers on 22 Jump Street. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

The 21 Jump Street high school undercover cops Schmidt and Jenko (Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum) are back, but this time they're narco cops. That is until they botch an investigation into drug lord Ghost's (Peter Stormare) operation. Their failure gets them demoted back to the 22 Jump Street (they moved across the road) program. Jump Street's Captain Dickson (Ice Cube) sends them undercover, as unlikely brothers Brad and Doug McQuaid, to college to arrest the supplier of a drug named WHYPHY (WiFi). The bumbling, but self-confident duo infiltrates the college, but campus life threatens to blow apart their partnership.

Jump Street. Tatum and Hill's second outing as bumbling cops takes self-aware jabs at the business of sequels

Richard: Mark, Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum are producers on the new Jump Street film, which, I guess, explains all the jokes about how much everything cost.

At one point Hill actually says, "It's way more expensive for no reason at all."

I don't know how much the movie cost to make, but the self-aware jokes did make me laugh even though it is essentially a remake of the first film, with a few more Laurel and Hardy slapstick gags and amped-up explosions.

What was your take?

Mark: Richard, I liked this instalment way more than the previous outing.

I loved all the self-referential gags, including the brilliant end-credits that hilariously make fun of the inevitable sequels that will follow.

I credit the directors, Phil Lord and Chris Miller, for the knowing pop culture sophistication they brought to the film.

They directed the first one, too, but they've grown more confident since their Lego Movie hit, which also tweaked the audience's expectations in a similar way.

RC: The end credit sequence, which maps out the next sequels from number 3 to installment 43 — they go to Beauty School and Magic School among other places of higher learning — is probably the funniest part of the movie.

The stuff that comes before is amiable, relying on the Mutt and Jeff chemistry of Hill and Tatum for laughs. It's boisterous and aims to please, but best of all are the self-referential jokes.

By clowning around about the difficulty in making the sequel better than the original, they're winking at the audience, acknowledging that this is basically a spoof of Hollywood sequels.

It's subversive, meta and kind of brilliant.

MB: Yep. Because I can see explosions and pratfalls in any "action comedy"; it's the subversive stuff that makes this movie stand apart.

The intergender fight sequence between Jonah Hill and Jillian Bell (who is incredible throughout the film) is as subversive a take on sexual politics and "rape culture" that you will ever find.

It's these kinds of scenes that kept me laughing through the picture. The black stoner twins, played expertly by The Lucas Bros, were a masterpiece of writing and comic timing.

RC: I agree, but ill-timed jokes about Maya Angelou and Tracy Morgan were sore thumbs for me, but that's more coincidence, I guess than bad taste.

MB: I don't think those jokes were deliberate, but they sure broke the spell for me.

But then Ice Cube's comic rants got me back.

Why Australia is a perfect setting for a post-apocalyptic film

The Rover opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

The Rover. Aussie filmmaker takes to his home to film tale about a man out for revenge in a hostile world

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Australian filmmaker David Michod made quite a first impression in Hollywood with his 2010 debut, Animal Kingdom, so a lot of eyes were on him as he chose a followup. That choice is now here in the form of The Rover, a post-apocalyptic tale about a man (Guy Pearce) out for revenge against the guys who stole his car.

Australia seems to lend itself to these post-apocalyptic settings.
I love this kind of movie, people stranded in a really inhospitable landscape. And in some ways it doesn't get more inhospitable than Australia largely because 80 per cent of the country is desert and there are so few people out there. It's both epically beautiful and wholly terrifying when you're out there, because you know that only a couple of little things would need to go wrong and you could die. For instance, New Zealand doesn't really have any animals, so there's lots of beautiful stuff to look at, but it also makes it a little bit dull. I realized how much I love roaming in the bush in Australia because at any moment something that might kill you could pop out.

Of course, in The Rover it's more the people that might kill you.
In a way, it's a kind of geo-political inversion of the world in present day, because the world of The Rover in a way sort of exists on the planet today. It just happens to be in super-violent, resource-rich countries like Nigeria or West African states where there still is an infrastructure and official organization, but it's just incredibly cutthroat, and there is violence bubbling under the surface at all times.

There is a sort of sense of anger threaded through this narrative.
I can't remember at what point in the writing process this started to happen, but I started to funnel a lot of my anger and despair into the world of the movie and specifically into Guy's character — anger at the willingness that the people today seem to have to just let the world fall into disrepair solely to service the rampant greed of a very small number of people. You look at the invasion of Iraq on a certain level, and it would seem to me that the only reason that administration embarked on that ludicrous endeavour was to enrich their friends. I mean, to cause so much suffering in order to enrich a small number of people is pathologically evil. And it's difficult, when you think about these things, not to get angry.

Pedro and ligers and tots, oh my!

Gosh! Ten years after cracking us up as Napoleon Dynamite, Jon Heder reflects on the movie that launched his career

"What are you gonna do today, Napoleon?" "Whatever I feel like I wanna do. Gosh!" THE CANADIAN PRESS

Of all the memorable lines in Napoleon Dynamite, the quirky comedy that introduced the world to "ligers" and "Vote for Pedro" T-shirts, there is one that gets hollered at star Jon Heder more than any other.

"Tina, you fat lard, come get some dinner," says Heder, easily adopting Napoleon's indignant, breathy voice after all these years.

The line — directed at his grandmother's pet llama, Tina — perfectly captures the offbeat tone of the 2004 film.

Made for just $400,000, the movie was picked up by Fox Searchlight and Paramount after premiering at the Sundance Film Festival and made $46 million worldwide.

Heder, now 36, celebrated the film's 10th anniversary this week with other cast members in Los Angeles, where a statue of Napoleon was unveiled on the Fox Studios lot. In a phone interview with The Canadian Press, he said the film's cult following continues to this day.

"I think people really related to Napoleon, whether they felt like him growing up or knew someone like that," he said. "Even though it's kind of over-the-top and funny, he's trying to get skills, he's trying to figure out what he's good at and everyone can relate to that."

The bizarre comedy set in a rural Idaho town follows Napoleon, a frizzy-haired teenager with a permanent slack-jawed expression, and the unusual characters around him: his shrimpy brother Kip; football-obsessed Uncle Rico; and shy, crafty friend Deb, played by Tina Majorino.

Director Jared Hess took inspiration from his own rural upbringing while writing the film with his wife, Jerusha. His brothers even worked at the chicken farm where Napoleon toils, and the llama actually belonged to his mother — although her real name was Dolly, not Tina.

"After the film screened for the first time at Sundance, my mom came up to me afterwards and said, 'Well, that was a lot of embarrassing family material,'" said Hess with a laugh.

"The character of Napoleon, especially — I come from a family of six boys and just about everything that is said in the film or happens in the film, my brothers either said or experienced firsthand."

Hess wrote a short film featuring the Napoleon character about a year and a half before the feature. He was struggling to find the right actor to play the central role, before he remembered Heder from one of his classes at film school.

"I acted out for him the voice and some of the mannerisms of how he was supposed to sound and look, but then Jon took it and ... he just became the character and totally brought him to life," Hess said.

When Heder read the script for the short film, he said he immediately identified with the Napoleon character because he also grew up in a big family of boys.

"I got it right away," Heder said. "I knew exactly who that person was because so much of Napoleon was in my younger brothers and in myself. We had very similar experiences. I loved it. I was like, 'This is genius.'"

Woody Harrelson and Matthew McConaughey on True Detective. HBO

Don't get too attached to HBO's True Detective

Nic Pizzolatto. Show's creator says doing the show is such hard work that he can only see it going on for three years max

The creator of HBO's dark and brooding crime drama True Detective says fans of the popular show had better not get too attached over the long term.

"Each season I'm essentially creating a brand-new TV show and it can't have any growing pains like a regular first season. It has to work right out of the box and that's incredibly exhausting," Nic Pizzolatto said in an interview Wednesday at the Banff World Media Festival.

"I'm writing every episode, so I can't imagine I would do this more than three years. I'd like to have a regular TV show with fixed sets and regular actors," he said with a chuckle.

The first season starred Matthew McConaughey and Woody Harrelson, who were both executive producers, as well as Michelle Monaghan, Michael Potts and Tory Kittles. It used multiple timelines to trace the hunt for a serial killer by two Louisiana State Police Criminal Investigations Division homicide detectives over 17 years.

Pizzolatto said he's written two scripts so far that's he's happy with. But he has a message for people who believe rumours about who will be cast in season 2.

"Not a single rumour about casting that has been printed anywhere has any truth to it whatsoever. I've seen entertainment reporters say 'my sources say' and there are no sources. There's me and two other guys and they don't even know what I'm doing," he said.

"We haven't approached anybody yet. When I get back we're going to be meeting with directors and get the casting process into full gear," said Pizzolatto.

"We have four primary POV (point of view) roles we will really need to focus on and once those are in place we'll know the shooting schedule for sure. Right now we're planning to start in the fall."

The newfound attention and success has been a bit difficult for Pizzolatto, who is notoriously reclusive and does his best to avoid any social media.

"I'm pretty hard to actually get a hold of by design," he said.

"This has all been very new to me and what I've had to do is just find a distance for myself. We got here by me working in a vacuum towards my own vision for better or worse and then not compromising on it," said Pizzolatto.

"I'm not going to allow that sort of speculation to influence the way I work, and at the same time in order to work the way I work I cannot be engaging total strangers on the Internet to explain my work to them. I even kind of think it denigrates the work a little bit." THE CANADIAN PRESS

On tour in America, Jake Bugg feels at home

Bonnaroo and beyond. Young British upstart is eager to win new fans out on the road

Jake Bugg has been keeping busy in America since the release of his second album, the Rick Rubin-produced Shangri La, late last year. He wrapped up a headlining tour of sizeable theatres with a rousing sold-out show at the Ryman Auditorium in Nashville earlier this year, hit Ellen and American Idol, and did a flyby of the South by Southwest conference in Austin, Texas, last March on his way to the West Coast to play for Jimmy Fallon.

Now Bonnaroo starts a small run of festivals and theatres for Blake, and later this year, he'll open a run of dates for The Black Keys.

"I just love touring the States and seeing everything," said the 20-year-old roots rock-influenced singer with the raspy voice. "But you can't tour it if you have nobody to play to and the thing with festivals and the like is not everybody's there to see you, so it's an opportunity to make some new fans and build your fan base."

Bugg has been using his journeys to gather ideas for a third album, and the trip to Manchester, Tenn., for this weekend's festival won't be his only trip to the area. He plans to return later this year and visit Memphis, home to so many of his influences, like Stax Records.

"You know, I might go in there and it might not be happening or I might go in there and really love it and just get inspired and just want to spend some time there," Bugg said. "It's just about enjoying myself sometimes. I just want to enjoy myself and go trace back some of my musical roots and my heroes and stuff like that, and just see what happens."

This musical tourism paid off for Bugg on Shangri La as he collaborated with new friends in new locations. He found safe harbour in The Raconteurs singer-guitarist Brendan Benson's studio in Nashville. The sessions produced album standout Kingpin and two other strong songs.

"Jake's kind of a rare bird," Benson said. "He's so young, but he's got this kind of old man wisdom about him in his lyrics. He just sort of seems to be channelling an old spirit, like an old sailor from long ago or sometimes like an old blues man or something. It's a pretty strange thing to witness coming out of such a young kid's mouth."

There's a mini-British Invasion of sorts going on this weekend at the Bonnaroo Music & Arts Festival in Manchester, Tenn. Here are three acts we're particularly interested in — and don't forget you can stream many of the performances if you're not one of the 80,000 down on the farm.

3 Bonnaroo acts with buzz

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Arctic Monkeys

Listen to any rock radio station for 30 minutes and you'll likely hear the Arctic Monkeys. The Sheffield, England, quartet began as buzzed-over darlings eight years ago and survived that experience to mature into a formidable, lasting act that's learned the art of keeping our attention.

Sam Smith

James Blake took a nod for best new artist last year, and you can bet neo-soul crooner Sam Smith from London will pick one up this year. The BBC's Sound of 2014 winner is one of the hottest singers on vinyl this year and his star is only going to get bigger. Check him out while you can still catch him at one of Bonnaroo's more intimate stages.

Disclosure

Guy and Howard Lawrence of Grammy-Award-nominated Disclosure and Smith broke through together when the Surrey sibling duo featured Smith on their breakthrough Latch a few years ago. Like Smith, the Lawrences have drawn attention since then and are seen as one of electronic music's most promising acts.

Kendall and Kylie krazy excited for MMVAs

Awards show. 'We just want to have fun with it and do the best we can,' says Kendall about their hosting duties

Fresh off a teleprompter flub at the Billboard Music Awards, Kendall Jenner says she's relaxing ahead of her upcoming hosting gig with sister Kylie at the Much Music Video Awards.

"We don't want to think too much about it. If we think too much about it, we'll get really nervous and work ourselves up. We're just relaxing and getting excited," she said.

The teenage sisters — reality TV personalities and members of the Kardashian brood — say they have only seen snippets of the show in the past, but are expecting a "big, fun party."

Their first time hosting an awards show comes just weeks after Kendall appeared to misread the teleprompter at the Billboard Music Awards and joked, "I'm the worst reader, you guys."

When asked about the slip, whispering between the sisters and their manager could be heard, before Kendall replied, "Next question. Sorry."

But Kendall, 18, said she and Kylie are excited about the opportunity to host the MMVAs this Sunday.

Asked several questions about what viewers can expect, the sisters wouldn't share many details — urging fans to tune in and find out.

"We just want to make it fun. This is obviously our first time, and we're not perfect, so we just want to have fun with it and do the best we can," said Kendall.

The daughters of Bruce and Kris Jenner, the teens have been appearing on Keeping Up With the Kardashians for years, alongside half sisters Kim, Khloe and Kourtney.

Kendall and Kylie have gone on to walk runways, design a clothing line and write a young-adult science-fiction novel called Rebels: City of Indra with the help of author Maya Sloan.

Both recently attended Kim's wedding to rapper Kanye West in France and Italy, which Kendall described as "truly magical."

"I really enjoyed the fireworks at Versailles. I thought that that was amazing and romantic. The whole thing was pretty incredible," she said.

Kylie, 16, said her favourite part of the wedding was sultry crooner Lana del Rey's performance. "I really love her," she said.

The younger Jenner also denied rumours she is dating troubled Canadian pop superstar Justin Bieber, who has two MMVA nominations this year but is not listed among the show's performers or presenters.

Asked which artists they're looking forward to seeing, both Kendall and Kylie said 17-year-old New Zealand singer-songwriter Lorde was at the top of their list. "I missed Lorde at Coachella so I really wanted to see her, so I can't wait to see her," said Kylie.

The MMVAs will be held Sunday outside CTV headquarters in downtown Toronto and be simulcast on Much and CTV. Other performers include Hedley, Imagine Dragons, Kiesza, Ariana Grande, Ed Sheeran and the Sam Roberts Band.

Card countin' Affleck gets kicked out of Windsor casino, to the surprise of no one in particular

A day trip to Caesars Windsor turned into a dark night for Ben Affleck last month.

According to Radar Online, the 41-year-old actor took a break from filming Batman v. Superman in Detroit to hit the Canadian casino on May 31. "He sat down and played for roughly 20 minutes before security heard he was there. They made the dealers stop what they were doing and asked him to leave. Ben seemed pretty mad," a source told Radar.

Affleck is a well-known card shark, having been banned from casinos in Las Vegas for counting cards; his reputation appears to have preceded him at Caesars. METRO

Pippa embarks on bike race across this side of the pond

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News in New York City

Next time you're driving in America, glance at the bike lane. Do you see a lovely butt and very shiny hair? You may be sharing the road with a princess-adjacent socialite. Beginning June 15, Pippa Middleton is biking across America.

Pippa and her brother James Middleton are participating in the Race Across America, a cross-country bicycle race from Oceanside, Calif., to Annapolis, Md. They'll be part of an eight-person relay team with their friend James Matthews, raising money for the foundation named for James' brother Michael Matthews. Michael Matthews passed away at the age of 22 while descending from Mount Everest. The foundation begun in his name raises money for education for poor children around the world.

Bieber says I love you, one deleted Instagram photo at a time

Social media is the bane of the fickle heart, as Justin Bieber is proving with his erratic postings pertaining to on-again, off-again girlfriend Selena Gomez.

While it has seemed that the couple had finally split for good in recent months, Bieber doesn't seem so sure.

Just this week, he posted a close-up photo of the two in an embrace with the caption, "Our love is unconditional."

Suggesting a tentative Romeo, he quickly deleted the posting — but not before many of his 16 million Instagram followers screen-grabbed it and re-posted it.

Out of problems, LiLo turns on freckles

Lindsay Lohan

Lindsay Lohan is looking to turn over a whole new leaf, and that apparently involves changing one very iconic part of her image. "She's always loved her freckles — well, pretended to, anyway — but now she's decided it's time to get rid of them and she's looking into having them either bleached or lasered away," a sources tells the National Enquirer.

"Lindsay is known for trying new things, but she's shocked friends and family members by suddenly getting irate over her freckles."

Pink is the new white when it comes to casual back deck sipping wine. Rosé has been the warm weather go-to for Europeans for years and Canada is starting to catch up. Sadly, our opinion of blush wines has been influenced by white zinfandel: a popular, but polarizing, version that's typically confectionary and usually sweet (most rosé is dry). Though pleasant enough, their reputation as a simple tipple for those new to wine hasn't done classic rosé styles any favours.

A rosé's pink hue comes from dark grape skins coming into contact for a short while with the juice. The longer they're together, the darker the wine.

Spain has a history of rosé production using indigenous grape varietals. The Marqués de Cáceres 2013 Rosado ($13.95 - $16.29) is made from tempranillo and its balance of juicy, berry fruit with a refreshing dryness is a benchmark. As well as tasting great, rosé wines are fantastic with food — especially if the dish is eclectic or has an aggressive, dominating flavour. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. Grilled Caramelized Onion and Feta Pizza.
Don't limit this family favourite to a hot oven. It can easily be made in your backyard

Onions are a reflex buy for many. Every time these people go to the grocer they always buy a bag of onions. They're a kitchen staples so you must always be about to run out, right? It's a good theory. But if that was the case, you wouldn't currently have 15 pounds of onions on the counter.

That's where this grill-friendly way of using a whole mess of caramelized onions comes in.

1. Set the pizza crust, in the bag, on the counter to come to room temperature.

2. Meanwhile, in large, heavy pot, over medium heat, melt butter. Add onions and cook, stirring often, 20 minutes. Stir in raisins, garlic and caraway seeds, then cook another 3 minutes, or until onions are significantly reduced and caramelized. Stir in red peppers, then transfer to bowl and set aside.

3. When onions are done, heat grill to medium-high. On lightly floured counter, roll pizza dough out to a 14-inch round. Brush top of dough with oil, then transfer it to large plate for carrying to grill. Have remaining ingredients prepared, then bring everything to grill.

Ingredients

- 20-oz ball purchased pizza crust
- 2 tbsp butter
- 2 medium yellow onions, thinly sliced
- 1/3 cup golden raisins
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tbsp caraway seeds
- 12-oz jar roasted red peppers, drained and sliced
- Olive oil
- 1/3 cup pine nuts
- 1/2 cup crumbled feta cheese

4. Flip dough onto grill, oiled side down, and cook 5 minutes, or until the bottom is lightly browned and puffed. Reduce the heat to medium-low, then brush the top of the dough with oil. Use tongs to flip the dough.

5. Spread the onion mixture evenly over the crust, then sprinkle it with pine nuts and feta. Cover the grill and cook for 4 to 6 minutes, or until the bottom is lightly browned and the feta is softened. Serve immediately. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Head coach vacancy

Crawford admits he's interviewed with Canucks

Marc Crawford has made no secret about his desire to get back behind the bench of an NHL team.

On Thursday, speaking on Team 1040 radio, he admitted he has interviewed for the vacant head coaching position with the Vancouver Canucks. He didn't get into any specific details, however.

"It's the time right now where all the teams have reached out and the process I think is being delayed by a couple of issues," said Crawford on the Bro Jake Show in the morning.

"There's some prime candidates that are still involved in the playoffs, both in the American League and the NHL. And a lot of these teams, they want to interview everybody, as they should."

He didn't name names but mentioned the current situations of coaching candidates still working for their current teams in the post-season.

Willie Desjardins of the AHL's Texas Stars is coaching in the Calder Cup final, while John Stevens is still behind the bench as an assistant with the L.A. Kings in the Stanley Cup final.

Both of those names have been linked to the job in Vancouver.

Crawford, who coached the Canucks from the 1998-99 season all the way to the end of the 2006 campaign, is still confident he'll be back in the NHL next season.

"I think that somebody's going to get really lucky," he said.

'A feather in his cap'

Soccer. Whitecaps' Steven Beitashour representing Iran at World Cup

CAM TUCKER
cam.tucker@metronews.ca

Steven Beitashour has some memory.

Giving a description of how he found out that he would be going to the 2014 FIFA World Cup in Brazil, the Whitecaps right back gave the date and time when he was informed he'd represent Iran on this, the biggest of soccer's many stages.

June 1, right at 12:30 p.m., said Beitashour, who attended Iran's training camp prior to the decision. That was 12 days ago. It would be possible for some details to escape him.

"We were just kind of waiting because that's when the coach said he was going to announce it. We didn't really have any idea beforehand," Beitashour told reporters in a conference call on Thursday.

"We were just waiting like the rest of the world. Actually, the way I found out was my wife was the first one to (tell me). She was on it, waiting for the announcement, so she let me know."

The World Cup opened Thursday, with the host nation Brazil scoring a 3-1 victory over Croatia, yet the triumph never looked easy for the favoured squad.

Iran, which is competing in Group F and 43rd in FIFA world rankings, will open its tournament against Nigeria on Monday. Beitashour doesn't yet know if he'll be in the lineup for his nation's opener.

DeMerit out for six weeks

Whitecaps centre back Jay DeMerit is expected to miss at least six weeks with a tendon tear in his left ankle, the club announced Thursday.

- The injury occurred in the first half of Saturday's draw with the Philadelphia Union. In a statement on its website, the club said the 34-year-old DeMerit had elected not to have surgery. He'll return to Vancouver from Connecticut on Sunday to continue his rehab.

Beitashour, who is from San Jose, Calif., but is born to Iranian parents, is in his first year with the Whitecaps. He was acquired this past off-season for allocation money, joining Vancouver's side with high expectations after four solid years with the Earthquakes.

He's been a solid addition to the Whitecaps, an upstart team with a young nucleus of exciting players up front.

"When we were looking to replace Y.P. Lee, we were looking outside of the league and looking inside, and he was one of the players we identified as if not the top prospect, certainly one of in the league, and outside of the league for that matter," said Whitecaps president Bob Lenarduzzi.

"I think it's a feather in his cap and a feather in our cap that we've got the quality of player that is competing at the World Cup."

Never boring: Flyweight tilt headlines UFC 174

Demetrious Johnson trains at the UFC 174 Open Workout at the Capture Lab at EA Sports in Burnaby. JENNIFER GAUTHIER/METRO

The UFC flyweight title has been around for less than two full years, yet for the first time ever the division will headline a pay-per-view event at UFC 174.

"It just shows, you look at all the flyweight fights in the UFC, there hasn't been one boring one," said Demetrious Johnson, nicknamed "Mighty Mouse," and the current holder of the title.

"Obviously there's boring fights in every single division. I'm going to tell you that right now. But I haven't sat there and watched a Flyweight fight and I was like, 'Man, that was pretty boring.'"

Fighting out of Parkland, Wash., which is just south of Seattle, Johnson became the UFC's first-ever Flyweight champion on Sept. 22, 2012. He's fought three more times since then, all of those coming on UFC on Fox.

Come Saturday, it will be him and Ali Bagautinov of Dagestan Republic, Russia, taking the spotlight at Rogers Arena. It's the main event.

Johnson, who stands only five foot three and weighs 125 pounds, all of which appears to be nothing but muscle, enters this bout with a 19-2-1 record in MMA.

His last fight came Dec. 14, when he earned a first-round knockout against Joseph Benavidez.

He's earned honours such as Fight of the Night, Submission of the Night and Knockout of the Night — the resumé of someone who can put on a wildly entertaining show.

"I'm pretty pumped to be the man to front that bill, and hopefully we put on an exciting show on Saturday."

NBA

Heat's title defence going up in flames

The San Antonio Spurs have three more chances to grab the championship trophy that slipped away last year.

The way they're dominating the Miami Heat, they might need just one.

Kawhi Leonard had 20 points and 14 rebounds, and the Spurs routed the Heat again, winning 107-86 on Thursday to open a commanding 3-1 lead in the NBA Finals. The Spurs can win their fifth title with a win at home in Game 5 on Sunday.

Neymar's brace keeps party jumping in Brazil

World Cup. Hosts open tournament with 3-1 victory over Croatia

Brazil's Neymar, middle, celebrates his second goal with Hernanes, left, and Fred on Thursday in Sao Paulo, Brazil. ADAM PRETTY/GETTY IMAGES

Neymar gave Brazil a winning start to its home World Cup, scoring twice to lead the host nation to an unconvincing 3-1 victory over Croatia in the opening game on Thursday.

Brazil had a disastrous start when defender Marcelo found his own net while trying to clear a low cross by Ivica Olic in the 11th minute, but Neymar then showed why the nation's high hopes are all pinned on him.

The 22-year-old forward equalized in the 29th minute, clearing a defender in midfield before making a run toward the edge of the area and firing a perfectly placed low shot that went in off the post.

The game turned on a controversial penalty awarded by Japanese referee Yuichi Nishimura in the 71st minute when striker Fred went down inside the area under minimal contact from defender Dejan Lovren.

Neymar scored from the spot, and the Croatians were furious.

"If that was a penalty, we should be playing basketball," said Croatia coach Niko Kovac. "Those kinds of fouls are penalized there."

"That is shameful; this is not a World Cup referee. He had one kind of criteria for them and another for us. The rules were not the same," said Kovac.

As Croatia searched desperately for an equalizer, Oscar added to the lead in the first minute of injury time with a toe poke from just outside the penalty area.

Croatia had a few good chances toward the end and had a goal disallowed in the 83rd after the referee ruled Olic had fouled Brazil goalkeeper Julio Cesar.

The host nation hasn't lost in the opening match in the last nine World Cups. South Africa was held by Mexico to a 1-1 draw four years ago. A draw would have been a huge disappointment for Brazil, which had won its opening match the last eight times.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Don't get uptight if someone says something you disagree with. Stay calm, tell your side of the story and then listen to theirs. Don't be surprised if what they say makes sense.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You'll be in an impulsive mood today and there is a danger you might fall out with someone you should be on good terms with. Don't start a war of words just because you don't care for the way they do business.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Don't let others dictate to you because once they get the idea that you can be ordered about they will make your life a misery. Make sure they know you can bite as well as you bark.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
If you allow yourself to be talked into doing something you don't want to do today, you will regret it for weeks or months to come. There's no easy way to tell people you can't help them. Just say "no".

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
The full moon could have you doing things and saying things that will cause problems of a romantic nature. Handle affairs of the heart with a great deal of care over the next 48 hours.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Because today's full moon cuts across a powerful angle of your chart you must be ready for those around you to overreact in some way. On the home front there will be times when logic goes out the window.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You seem a bit excitable but that's OK — most likely nothing bad will come of it. In fact this looks like being a good time for you, especially if you are traveling or planning a vacation.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
There is no reason you should not go out and have a good time but that does not mean you have to buy drinks for everyone. You have been far too generous of late.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
The full moon in your sign could see you acting out of character today and you may even make a fool of yourself. But what does it matter? It's all good, clean fun.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You may not be able to make sense of what is happening at the moment but don't worry. You aren't the only one who is having a hard time getting a grip on reality. Once the full moon fades all will be revealed.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The more you socialize now, the more likely it is you'll learn something to your advantage. Before the day is over you will be good friends with someone who shares your beliefs, ideals and taste for adventure.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Resist the temptation to tell an employer what you really think of them today. It won't work out right. If you cannot say something nice then it might be wise to say nothing at all. Think of your future. SALLY BROMPTON
